Course Overview

This course will introduce Japan's recent security policies and foreign policies. The course begins with an overview of Japan's postwar history, including a brief sketch of its cultural, social, political, legal, and economic structure. We then learn about the security situation in the Asia-Pacific region, the U.S.-Japan security alliance, and Japan's recent security policies including the 2015 security legislation debate and policy debate on constitutional reform. The class will also discuss anti-militaristic culture of Japan and its influence to public opinion on the Self-Defense Forces.

In today's world, no nation can maintain its own peace and security alone. It is particularly so for Japan, which officially has no military according to Article 9 of its Constitution and has Self-Defense Forces for national territory defense that may be deployed abroad only for humanitarian assistance and disaster relief, or peace activities including UN peacekeeping missions.

In the security environment surrounding Japan, which is becoming increasingly severe, it has become indispensable to strengthen the Japan-U.S. Security Arrangements and to enhance the deterrence of the Japan-U.S. Alliance, not only for the security of Japan but also for the peace and stability of the Asia-Pacific region. Based on the robust bilateral relationship confirmed through such meetings as the Japan U.S. Summit Meeting in April 2015, Japan and the U.S. are expanding and strengthening cooperation in a wide range of areas, including ballistic missile defense, cyber space and outer space.

Japan's Government under Prime Minister Abe has been making significant changes to its security policy which includes: the establishment of the National Security Council, the adoption of the National Security Strategy, and the National Defense Program Guidelines. The direction for new security legislation to ensure Japan's survival was adopted by Cabinet Decision in July 2014, and in 2015 the government submitted the bill to the Diet. After intensive discussions lasting over 200 hours, the legislation was approved by the Diet on September 19, 2015.

The class will read studies and research accumulated in the field of foreign policies, security studies, a sub-discipline of International Relations (IR) and "military sociology" to examine how the recent security policies have been created. The course objectives are: 1) to enable students to develop a broader understanding of the key theories and concepts in foreign policy and security studies; 2) to examine major security challenges of Japan and the Asia-Pacific region through the lens of theories and concepts.

Course Objectives

- 1) Students will be able to understand the basic structure and uniqueness of Japan's security policy and its background
- 2) Students will be able to understand the current security environment in the Asia Pacific region and risks that Japan faces.
- 3) Students will be able to understand the basic framework and dynamism of the US-Japan security relationship and its challenges.
- 4) Students will be able to understand Japan's anti-militarism and its influence to public opinion to security policies and the Self-Defense Forces.

Assignments and Evaluation

- 1) Attendance and class participation (30%)
Students will have "summary and discussion" sessions at least once a week. Each student is assigned to serve as a "discussion facilitator." Based on the assigned readings, he/she will prepare a short (2-3 pages) "reaction paper," which could count for about 4% of the course grade, including a few questions that she/he plans to raise in class, and deliver a 5-minutes summary of the paper in class.
- 2) Short paper assignment (10%)
Maximum 3- pages paper assignment must be submitted after three weeks after the class begins.
- 3) Mid-term paper and presentation (30%)
Choose and analyze a particular security risk that Japan may face in the next ten years (any potential crisis situation) and how to deal with it. The paper should cover 1) Japan's current policies, 2) Japan's bilateral and multilateral foreign relations, and 3) Constitutional restriction and Japan's culture of anti-militarism. Depending on class size, we will do the mid-term project in groups. Quote at least two real comments/opinion from Japanese people (friends, host families, other instructors, etc.)
- 4) Final paper and presentation (30%)
Based on readings and classes for this course, discuss what Japan should do in the next ten years in the following four (A, B, C, D) dimensions. Quote at least two real comments/opinion from Japanese people (friends, host families, other instructors, etc.) First, explain a grand strategy. Second, discuss / explain status quo including legal, Political, institutional, administrative, and social restriction. Third, make a realistic solution to overcome those challenges.
  - A. To enhance Self-defense capability
  - B. To strengthen the Japan-US Alliance
  - C. To contribute rule-based order in Asia-Pacific
  - D. To contribute international peace cooperation

*Attendance policy: Missing two lectures without an appropriate reason will automatically drop your attendance grade by one full letter grade. Egregious tardiness

(three or more) will yield the same penalty. Four unexcused absences from lectures over the semester will result in the class participation grade turning to zero. Missed or late paper assignments without an appropriate reason will automatically drop your paper and presentation grade by one full letter grade.

Accommodating Students with Disabilities

If you are a student with a disability and have a DS-certified 'Accommodation Letter' please see the KCJS resident director to confirm your accommodation needs. If you believe that you have a disability that requires accommodation, you can contact your home school's Disability Services or Columbia's Disability Services at disability@columbia.edu. The Office of Global Programs (OGP) can also assist you to connect with Columbia's Disability Services.
